Beware of different sizes of Cambodian notes – it does not indicate counterfeit money!

The Cambodian Riel bills are not really all of the same length. The smallest denomination exchanged in everyday transactions is the 100 Riel bill. It has the shortest length among the bills that are commonly used. The 500 Riel bill is slightly longer than the 100 Riel bill but still shorter compared to the rest of the bills of higher denominations. Recently (Year 2013), a new 1,000 Riel was issued by the Cambodian government. It shows the image of the King Father Norodom Sihanouk. The old 1,000 Riel bill, showing the spires of Angkor Wat, is shorter than the new 1,000 Riel bill.
